

THE 80TH COMMENCEMENT OF GETTYSBURG COLLEGE IS BEING CELEBRATED THIS WEEK

The Message of the Event is that $90,000 has been Raised and $90,000 more is Needed.

Gettysburg College occupies the center of the stage this week with the celebration of the 80th Commencement and the message of the occasion is that one half of the fund has been raised to entitle the College to receive the donation of $50,000 from the Rockefeller Foundation. The College is required to pay its debt of $30,000 and raise by July 10, 1913 $150,000, to receive the $50,000 donation. The college will be $230,000 better off when the money has been raised, and presuming that the entire amount will be raised $140,000 is in sight on this 80th Commencement anniversary, and $90,000 more remains to be raised before July 10th, 1913. Or if the Rockefeller Foundation is excluded, Gettysburg College is half way on its journey of raising $180,000, one half of that amount, $90,000 having been promised and that much more must be raised within the next year. The first half should be the most difficult. Now the fund has momentum, it inspires enthusiasm to reach the goal and the work of personally seeing all friends of the College will be facilitated by what has been done.

The work is farther advanced by a demonstration of what Gettysburg is doing. Dr. W. A. Granville in his work of raising the endowment fund is able to give a satisfactory answer to the question he has faced all the time namely what is Gettysburg doing for the institution. Gettysburg up to the present time has contributed over $10,000 for this endowment fund of the College and the town's contribution may go to $12,000 or $15,000. The canvass of Gettysburg has been going on during the past two months and notwithstanding the many objects that call for support in the town at the present time the $10,000 has been quickly raised. When the population and moderate means of this town are considered the showing already made is most creditable and if the many strong and wealthy Lutheran communities nearby and at a distance that look upon Gettysburg as the center of the Lutheran world answer the appeal of the College as well proportionally as to number of Lutherans and their wealth, the raising of the remaining half of the fund is assured beyond all question. The present is most bright with assurances that Gettysburg College is moving onward to the destiny of a greater Gettysburg College.

Baccalaureate.

The 80th Commencement opened on Sunday morning with the baccalaureate address by Dr. W. A. Granville. The sixty-five members of the graduating class presented an imposing sight in their march to the College church in cap and gown. The 1911 class is the largest class that has been graduated from the institution and the church was crowded to witness the opening of the 80th Commencement.

Dr. William Anthony Granville took as his text for the occasion "The Responsibility Which Education Implies," basing his remarks on the parable of the talents, Matthew 25: 14-30, and among other things said:

The right sort of a college graduate should not be far removed from the ebb and flow of the every day hum drum life of his home town or of the community in which his college is located. If his education has been of the right kind he will have entered more deeply than ever into the political, social, industrial and moral situations that confront us as a people, and will have carefully studied the perplexing problems that are calling to us as a nation for solution. In fact his future success, his usefulness in the most comprehensive sense of the term, will in a very large measure depend on the keenness of his perception in discovering our real, our essential needs, and on his skill and industry in satisfying them.

We observe that the Master did not hand over the talents in fee simple to his servants to do with according to their own sweet will; the talents were given to them in trust, for we read that "after a long time the Lord of these servants cometh, and reckoneth with them." And this idea of the responsibility of stewardship is brought out in a clear and strong light, when in his reckoning with the unprofitable servant, the Master said "at my coming I should have received my own with interest." Your talent of a college education has been given you as a sacred trust, it is a temporary, a conditional loan, it is a personal obligation which you cannot evade or shift to other shoulders, it is a responsibility for which you individually will be held to the strictest accountability.

If we do not bring to our bank interest on the money we have borrowed as well as the principal when demanded the bank has no redress in case we are insolvent; it is a loss they must be prepared to bear, for that is one of the hazards of the business of banking. But God is never at a loss to enforce His demands and His decrees are executed by a court higher than any human tribunal. His judgments are final, there can be no appeal from His decisions to a higher court, for His court is the Supreme Court of the universe. He is a judge who cannot be influenced by a referendum or intimidated by a recall. In the same measure as God is love and deliv-in rewarding the good, the true, the loyal, the faithful soul, so also, His justice is without flaw and His punishment is just as sure to follow faithlessness as His mercy abounds to those who love Him and keep His commandments.

And all this you must weigh carefully uninfluenced by personal pride or an overweening ambition on the one hand or by an indolent nature or an affected modesty on the other, having always in view only the highest utility and the greatest good, with a burning desire to accelerate all movements in the cause of civil righteousness, human happiness, and holy enterprise. You must have the courage to ask where your duty lies and you should be ready and willing to unreservedly follow wherever the answer may lead.

The special music for the service consisted of an organ anthem by Mark K. Eckert, a solo by Miss Ruth Clutz with Mr. Lotz playing a violin obligata and a violin solo by Mr. Lotz. Sunday evening an open air song service was conducted by the College Y. M. C. A. in front of Old Dorm. Dr. T. J. Barkley read the scripture lesson, Rev. L. Dow Ott offered prayer and Rev. E. E. Taylor made a short address. The College Orchestra furnished the music for the occasion.

Sunday evening in the College Church Robert Weidensall, Honorary International Secretary Young Men's Christian Association, class of '09 delivered an address to the College Y. M. C. A. The College Glee Club forming the choir for the service.

On Monday evening the Combined Musical Clubs of the College assisted by the College Orchestra gave the annual Commencement Concert in Brua Chapel. A better concert was never given, it ever equalled. The musical organizations of the College are in great shape and give a most delightful entertainment, the orchestra under leadership of J. Dale Diehl having developed wonderfully. The College has in the musical organization one of its best attractions and advertising features.

The full program Monday evening was as follows:

MARRIAGES.

SMITH-HEIGES—A beautiful wedding took place in the Lutheran church at Arendtsville, Tuesday, June 4th, when Miss Mary E. Heiges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron M. Heiges, was given in marriage to Rev. Mervin E. Smith, son of Mr. Jacob Smith. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. T. Koser, pastor of the bride. The Lutheran wedding march was played by Miss Veda Koser as they entered the church. They were attended by Rev. G. R. Haaf and Miss Edna Atkinson, of New Jersey. The ushers were Ray C. Heiges, brother of the bride, and Earl Trostel.

The bride was attired in a beautiful cream messaline dress, wore a bridal veil and carried bride's roses. The bridesmaid wore an old rose crepe de chene dress and carried pink carnations.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception and dinner was given at the home of the bride's parents, seventy-two being present. They were the recipients of many beautiful and useful presents as well as several hundred dollars in money. After the reception they left for a trip to Harrisburg, Philadelphia and Atlantic City.

Rev. Smith and Rev. Haaf were classmates at the Lutheran Seminary, and have just graduated. After June 25th, Rev. and Mrs. Smith will be at home at Bioserville, Pa., where Rev. Smith has accepted a call as pastor of the Lutheran church at that place.

STOFFER-HAMILTON—At one o'clock yesterday—Tuesday, Miss Carrie Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton and Rev. Howard Stouffer, pastor of Second Lutheran church of Chambersburg were united in marriage at the home of the bride.

KNOSS—TROSTEL—A beautiful wedding occurred last Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Trostel in Arendtsville, at high noon when their daughter, Netta Evelyn, became the bride of Francis C. Knoss, a popular young tailor of Bethlehem. Only the immediate families and a few friends witnessed the ceremony which was performed by the bride's brother, Rev. I. W. Trostel, of Dillsburg, assisted by Rev. D. T. Koser, her pastor. The bride and groom were unattended. M. Elizabeth Trostel, niece of the bride, was flower girl. The groom resided in Gettysburg several years, while an apprentice in the Lippy tailoring establishment.

FLESHMAN-MILLER—Harry L. Fleshman, son of Mrs. F. L. Fleshman, and Miss Lottie Miller, both of Hanover were married at the rectory of St. Vincent's church, Sunday evening, June 2, by Rev. Fr. Murphy. The attendants were Daniel Keller and Miss Carrie Fleshman, sister of the groom. The young couple were tendered a reception at the groom's home, following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Fleshman left on Monday morning for Waynesboro, where the groom is employed, and where they will make their future home. Mr. Fleshman is well known as a baseball catcher, having been captain of the Hanover team last year. He formerly resided in New Oxford.

Know Paint.

There's a paint education in this advertisement.

Buy by the job, not gallon. Buy by the paint put on; that's the job.

The price of paint is so much a gallon that can't be helped, but amounts to nothing.

The price of painting is so much a day that can't be helped, but amounts to nothing.

Put them together. How can you do it? You've got to or lose perhaps half of your money.

Devote 10 gallons enough for the average job; an average paint, 15. Now reckon your costs. Count labor a day for a gallon. Devote 10 days; the other 15.

Devote about $50; the average paint about $70 or $80; the dearer the labor the bigger the difference, always that way.

But that's for the job. How long is it going to last? One twice as long as the other.

GRAND ARMY OF REPUBLIC

ENJOYED A WEEK OF PERFECT WEATHER LAST WEEK.

G. A. R., Woman's Relief Corps and Ladies' of G. A. R. in Business Sessions for Three Days.

Gettysburg again entertained the Grand Army of the Republic and the perfect weather of last week made the occasion one of the most enjoyable the veterans had ever held here in recent years. The veterans and ladies began to arrive on Monday and the larger number remained until Friday, and with the work of the three organizations there was much sight seeing.

On Tuesday afternoon the first gathering of the veterans took place in the National Cemetery, being an impressive memorial service led by Chaplain J. W. Sayers, and there were short addresses and the old war songs. "We're Tenting To-night," "Just before the Battle, Mother" and hymns "When the Roll is called up Yonder," "There's a Land that is Fairer than Day" were sung with spirit by the two hundred veterans taking part in the service.

On Tuesday evening a camp-fire was held in the Court House, the room being crowded. Hon. W. T. Ziegler presided and many old war songs were sung heartily by the boys in blue. Rev. J. B. Baker made the address of welcome, paying a tribute to the American Soldier, the courage of the women of the Civil War and the right of the old soldier to be liberally rewarded with pensions by the government. The response to the welcome was made by Department Commander Kinsley. Short addresses were made by Congressman J. D. Hicks, of Altoona; Richard Holgate, of Scranton and Commander-in-chief Judge Trimble, of the G. A. R. of Chicago. The latter asking that a cordial welcome be given all confederates at the 50th anniversary next year.

The sensation of the evening was the unjust and uncalled for criticism of the people of Gettysburg by General Louis Wagner, president of the Fiftieth Anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg Commission, in which he said Gettysburg had not given the assistance expected. It was most ungracious in General Wagner to so express himself in the face of the fact that he owes his position at the head of the commission because Gettysburg took the initiative in resolving that the 50th anniversary be celebrated and appointed a committee to await upon Governor Stuart, asking that he recommend it in a message, which was done and the act authorizing the commission became a law by reason of such activity on the part of our people. Then the statement of General Wagner is inaccurate, for many months ago, Dr. J. A. Singmaster, Chairman of the local committee wrote the Commission, asking that some one be sent here to study the needs of the situation and many good ideas were suggested which would help to make the celebration a success. But this assistance was unwelcome. The policy of the head of the Commission of doing nothing along the many practical details of the event would have made the celebration a monumental failure. If the Congressional Committee had not realized the wisdom of the suggestions of our people, and had them studied, with the result that the success of the celebration is assured by the transfer of all authority over the details to the Secretary of War. Now the people of the town are criticized for lack of assistance, because the disaster the do-nothing policy of the Commission had headed the celebration toward, and the head of the Commission would unjustly point the finger at Gettysburg to escape the attention and criticism he is justly entitled to.

Hon. W. T. Ziegler at the conclusion of the speech of Gen. Wagner met the issue raised by declaring correctly that no help had been asked and if any was wanted the citizens would be willing to give of their time and work to further the celebration plans.

G. A. R. Sessions.

The first session of the Grand Army of the Republic in the Wizard Theatre was on Wednesday morning, when Thomas H. Cole, of Erie was elected Commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. of Pennsylvania and Dr. J. W. Sayers, of Philadelphia was re-elected Chaplain for his first term.

The first business considered was the time and place for the encampment of 1912. The 50th anniversary of the battle brought up the question whether the G. A. R. would make two trips, one to their annual encampment in early part of June and a second to Gettysburg or whether the annual encampment should be held the latter part of June so that the veterans could be present at the celebration and hold their encampment at the same. Indiana was an applicant for the encampment next year and it was finally decided to place the matter in the hands of the council of administration for action later.

On Thursday morning the rest of the officers for the coming year were chosen as follows: Noah Deatrick, of Easton, senior vice commander and George W. Rhodes, of Harrisburg, junior vice commander. The council of administration chosen for the coming year is made up of H. T. Stanwood, John Dougherty, J. Henry Holcomb and Alex. M. Appel, all of Philadelphia; and J. Y. Chessrown, of Philadelphia. The installation of officers there next fall.

HOWARD HARTLEY.

Member of the firm of Dougherty & Hartley, Dry Goods Merchants, was born in East Berlin and began his business career in that town as a clerk in the Elijah Spangler store in East Berlin, where he remained three years. Coming to Gettysburg he spent ten years in the dry goods store of G. W. Spangler. Twenty years ago the partnership was formed of Dougherty & Hartley, and the success of this firm is due to the careful management and attention given to their business. Two years ago Mr. Hartley was elected a Director of the Citizens Trust Company of this place and several months ago was made a director of the new Gettysburg Furniture Company.

PRIZE ESSAY--JOHN ADAMS

OFFERED BY LOCAL CHAPTER
OF THE D. A. R.The Prize of $5.00 Was Won by Miss Sarah Reen With the Following Essay.

When we hear Abraham Lincoln's famous dedicatory speech, we think at once of George Washington, "Father of his Country," and Thomas Jefferson, writer of the Declaration, as those "fathers who brought forth upon this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal." Why should they be honored above the others of their time? Are there no others who deserve to be called "fathers of their country?" In Germany, Moltke, the statesman who laid the plans of German unity, receives the honor he deserves, and is placed above those who simply carried out his plans and directions. Why do we not give John Adams honors equal to those of Washington? Is he not equally deserving of that title "The Father of his Country?" He surely "is owed a great respect and admiration among the people, as being a strong, virile man, who could be trusted at the crucial moment in despite of all sorts of somewhat ignoble foibles and very inexcusable blunders."

John Adams was born at Baintree, Massachusetts, October 19, 1735. His father was John Adams, a descendant of that Henry Adams, who came over from England and settled at Baintree under a grant from King Charles I. to one Thomas Adams. Henry was a poor farmer, and endured great hardships during his life in America. However John Adams, the father of the president, was prosperous, and able to give his son a Harvard education. His wife, Susanna Bostons, was a descendant of one of the oldest aristocratic families of Massachusetts. The president's early life was spent on his father's farm.

The Puritanical parents desired that John, the oldest son, should devote himself to the ministry, and with this end in view, he prepared for Harvard College. He soon found, however, that the Puritan doctrines were too narrow and confining for his varied dispositions, and chose, instead of the ministry, law. In 1775 he graduated from Harvard and became a school teacher at Worcester, meanwhile studying for his chosen profession. In 1758, he came to Boston, was recommended by Gridley, the leading lawyer of the colony, and admitted to the bar.

At that time came his greatest inspiration to public life. In 1761, James Otis delivered his powerful speech on the "Writs of Assistance," and Adams afterward declared "Then and there the child Independence was born." From that moment his mind was resolved, although then no thought of independence had entered the minds of the chief men of the colonies.

In October, 1764, Adams was married to Abigail Smith, the daughter of a clergyman of Weymouth. Through her he became acquainted with the Quincy family, and added a still greater influence and popularity to that which he had gained as a lawyer. Several years later he moved to Boston. There Governor Bernard offered him the post of Advocate-General in the Admiralty Court. He immediately refused, knowing that acceptance would place him under obligations to the Royalist party.

After the "Boston Massacre," which Adams considered as being fully as important as any battle of the Revolution, he and Josiah Quincy were retained as counsel for Captain Preston and the soldiers. Although public feeling among the citizens was strongly against him, Preston was acquitted. Strangely enough his acquittal did not have the effect of lessening Adams' popularity among the patriots, but rather won honor for him as a lawyer.

In 1771 he removed to Baintree. During that year he retained his office in Boston, and made the trip on horseback every day, although his health was poor. His spirits were exceedingly low and he declared his intention of avoiding politics. In the autumn of 1772, however, he again moved to Boston, and was soon engaged as deeply as ever in the political fray. He was elected one of the five representatives from Massachusetts to the First Continental Congress. In that office he was active on many committees, and his quick tongue was always ready in debate. As a representative he was popular, and in 1775 was sent to the Second Congress. There he opposed submission to Great Britain, urged the adoption of an army and suggested the appointment of Washington as Commander-in-Chief. Now he began to think that independence must eventually come, but still dared not make public his convictions. In May, 1776, things began to come to a crisis in Congress. New state governments were advised, and Adams was one of a committee on making constitutions. June 28, the committee on the Declaration reported it to the house. July 2, Adams led the debate concerning its adoption. After its adoption had been accomplished, he said in a letter to Samuel Chase: "The situation of things is so alarming that it is our duty to prepare our minds and hearts for every event, even the worst. From my earliest entrance into life I have been engaged in the public cause of America, and from first to last I have had upon my mind a strong impression that things would be wrought up to their present crisis. I saw from the beginning that it never would be settled, and every day convinces me more and more. This has been the source of all the disquietude of my life. It has lain down and risen up with me these twelve years. The thought that we might be driven to the sad necessity of breaking our connections with Great Britain, exclusive of the carnage and destruction which it is easy to see must attend the separation, always gave me a great deal of grief. And even now I would gladly retire from public life forever, renounce all chance for profits or honors from the public,--nay, I would cheerfully give my little property, to obtain peace and liberty. But all these must go, and my life too, before I can surrender the right of my country to a new constitution. I dare not consent to it. I should be the most miserable of mortals everafter, whatever honors or emoluments might surround me." With this realization of affairs, he devoted all his thought and time to his self-appointed task of bringing his countrymen to a proper sense of their duty and responsibility.

In 1777 he received an appointment as commissioner to France. There he found a condition which he zealously set about to reform. Although he had had little experience in managing the actual business of the States he showed sense and good judgment in his organization of the commission. Dr. Franklin, our minister to France, he condemned as living royally at the French court, enjoying the social life far too well to be mindful of his political duties.

After bringing about the desired reforms in the commission, he found that his time would not be fully occupied, and determined to go to Holland. That nation had not yet recognized our independence, and was ignorant of the existing conditions. Adams determined to inform them. Soon he brought about the recognition, and secured large loans from the government. In 1781 Congress appointed him plenipotentiary to Holland, and he was well received in that capacity.

After serving on several important committees and acting as United States minister to England, in 1789 he was elected Vice President. In this office he showed strength and dignity, and in several cases his vote decided important questions in the Senate. In 1793 he was reelected to the Vice Presidency.

As President, which he became in 1797, he was annoyed in all he attempted to do, by Hamilton's party leadership, and his avowed enmity toward the administration. Adams reached the height of his popularity when he caused the publication of the "X. Y. Z. Papers," giving an account of the perfidy of France. The war spirit of the people was immediately aroused, and the navy largely increased. But soon heavy reverses came, and Adams felt the sting of the contempt and hatred of the people. Congress passed the "Alien and Sedition Acts," to which Virginia and Kentucky were strongly opposed; and, although Adams participation in the acts was simply the addition of his official signature, that act prevented his reelection.

Upon his retirement from public office, while the country still resounded with his censure, he wrote: "I am left alone--can there be any deeper damnation in the universe than to be condemned to a long life in danger, toil and anxiety; to be rewarded only with abuse, insult and slander; and to die at seventy, leaving to an amiable wife and nine amiable children nothing for an inheritance but the contempt, hatred and malice of the world! How much prettier a thing it is to be a disinterested patriot like Washington and Franklin, live and die among the hosannas of the multitude, and leave half a million to one child or to no child!"

However, before he died, he came to view his life in a different light, and to feel that the hosannas of the multitude were not the highest laurels that might be won.

"Probably the best estimate of his life may be gotten from several lines inscribed on his tombstone, in the church at Baintree:

"On the Fourth of July, 1776, He pledged his life, Fortune, and Sacred Honor to the Independence of his Country."

On the Fourth of July, 1826, He was summoned to the Independence of Immortality, and to the Judgment of his God.

This house will bear witness to his piety;
This Town, his birthplace, to his munificence;
History to his Patriotism;
Posterity to the depth and compass of his mind."

"Pilgrim
From lives thus spent thy earthly duties learn:
From Fancy's dreams to active virtue turn;
Let Freedom, Friendship, Faith, thy soul engage.
And serve, like him, thy country and thy age."

Dangerous House.

Seven years ago, a family moved into a certain house in Philadelphia. Every member of it was, apparently, in the best of health. Since then, three of the children have died of tuberculosis. Another is sick of the disease. Investigation shows that a consumptive had lived in the house previously.

Scores of such cases are happening all the time. Germs from a consumptive are scattered through the house until it is filled with the disease. A new family occupies it and is stricken with tuberculosis.

Therefore, don't move into a house until you have found out who occupied it before. If a person suffering from a contagious disease lived there, have your Board of Health fumigate the house. Scrub the floors with soap and water.

Insist that your landlord repaper the walls. If he won't do it, do it yourself. It is better to spend a little money in killing germs than to pay hospital bills later.

No matter who has lived in the house into which you are moving, it never does harm to have the house fumigated, to replace old wall paper with new and to cleanse with soap and water everything that can be scrubbed.--Karl de Schweinitz, Executive Secretary, the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis.

Mother's Politics.

In years to come when women vote And have a right to mix In every wrangle on the map, Including politics, When national conventions meet With Penneys in the van, Among the female delegates Perchance may be a man.

Then when he rises with the rest To lift a timid voice And some one asks him who will be His Presidential choice This declaration proud and pat Will issue from his throat-- "I always vote the same old way That mother used to vote."

SOFT-WINGED PEACE

ONCE MORE BROODED OVER
CLABBER HOUSEHOLD.Head of the Family Arises and Declares Himself--Moral Contained In This Story Not Hard to Perceive.

Mr. Clabber had stood all the rest with as much equanimity as he could muster. But when Mrs. Clabber began to sniff and sniff just because he was smoking his old brier pipe--then indeed Mr. Clabber stood up for his rights as a sovereign man.

"Mrs. Clabber," said he, arising and speaking with much dignity, "ever since I came home this evening from a hard day's work in the marts of trade you have sought every reasonable and unreasonable opportunity to aggravate, irritate and otherwise annoy me. You have frowned and scowled and your conversation has been confined to monosyllables. You have burned the steak and you have undercooked the potatoes. Knowing that I like my rice pudding soft, you have let it cook hard. You have mislaid my slippers and have lost the evening paper. Knowing that I like to play with the canary, you have put him to bed."

"Nor, madam, is this all. You have grumbled and you have growled. I repeat it, madam; you have growled. You left your sewing in my easy chair. You opened a window so that the draft nearly blew my head off. You are wearing that old Persian wrapper, which you know I dislike, and you have referred to my family four times--each time in disrespectful terms. You have sniffed when I have gently remonstrated with you, or--worse yet--you have either remained truculently silent or you have banged a door. Not only have you banged doors, but you have banged plates, knives forks, spoons, cups, saucers, windows and overdoors. And now, Mrs. Clabber, when I light my pipe you begin to sniff in such a manner that I can stand it no longer. What, madam--what is the reason of all this? Oh! You are out of sorts, are you?"

"I see! Out of sorts! Permit me to suggest, Mrs. Clabber, the strong advisability of laying in an early supply of 'sorts.' Your present paucity of 'sorts' is wearying and distressing to a degree. It threatens the happiness--the life happiness, Mrs. Clabber--of two human beings. I do not know where sorts are to be had, but let me suggest that you apply there, wherever it is, as soon as possible for a generous stock. Sorts are evidently necessary to your wellbeing and happiness and I think it would be advisable for you to lay in enough sorts to last you over an emergency. You, being out of sorts, have used all mine and I find out that I am out of sorts myself. That is why I am putting on my hat, Mrs. Clabber. That is why I am putting on my coat and taking my pipe with me. I am going out to see if I can accumulate a few choice sorts and bring them back with me. Perhaps when I return you will have found a few available sorts and--What? You think you have scraped a few together now?"

"Well, well! This is encouraging news, Mrs. Clabber. I see, too, that you have recovered that pleasing smile which was ever your dearest charm. And so, madam, I will take off my hat. You may hang it on the rack. And here is my coat. I think that now you can even find my slippers. And my tobacco jar. Bless her heart! And now I know she is going to sit on the arm of my old armchair and light my old brier pipe. Ah, yes! It is very evident that we have all sorts of the very finest sorts back in stock again, Mrs. C. Out of sorts, indeed!"

The After Dinner Smoke.

Mr. Gladstone was one who cherished the old view that women and tobacco ought not to be brought into association. Sir Edward Hamilton records that he would recall a dictum of the fourth marquess of Londonderry, a magnate of fashion in Gladstone's earlier days, that no man ought to enter the society of ladies until four hours had elapsed after he had smoked a cigar. This was one reason why Gladstone hated the modern fashion of smoking after dinner, though his own dislike of the smell may have counted for a good deal.

But "Cranford" shows us that women and the pipe could be associated by extreme politeness--before the pipe was smoked. The courtly old bachelor, getting out his pipe and spitting out dinner hands the pipe to his former love that she may fill it for him before leaving the table; and it is explained that this was the pink of old-fashioned compliment.

Sig Tim Requested "No Flowers."

Among the thousands or so persons who sailed from New York a few days ago were Sig Tim Sullivan, of the state senate and the Rowery, William Randolph Hearst and Prince Tokugawa Iresato of Japan.

Big Tim earnestly asked his friends to please omit flowers. Said Mr. Sullivan:

"I'm no opera singer or titled gentleman, but plain Timothy D. Sullivan."

Nevertheless, Big Tim's crowd of followers was so large that the leader could not go on board the ship until a few minutes before sailing time, so insistent were they on shaking hands.

There were no flowers, as requested, but the blare of three brass bands and the parting shouts fully made up for this deficiency.

CONVICT HAS FERTILE BRAIN

Inventions of Real Worth the Work of Prisoner in Pennsylvania Penitentiary.

There was exhibited in the Eastern Penitentiary at Philadelphia a few days ago, six mechanical devices which one of the inmates of the institution has invented. The man, John Edwards, who is serving a long term for robbery, displayed so much ingenuity and skill in his work that the warden furnished him with money and gave him permission to spend his time in the perfection of his inventions.

One of the devices is a burglar alarm and doorbell. Another which the inventor calls an "internal combustion turbine," has aroused the curiosity of prominent mechanical engineers. It is operated by means of gravity and hydrostatic pressure. A "noiseless railroad crossing system" is another invention, the model of which he exhibited. He has applied for patents in Washington.

Edwards has invented an "ellipsograph," to be used by draftsmen and architects in drawing ellipses. He showed an improvement in padlocks, where the tensile strength of the lock is equal to the strength of six other ordinary locks. He has perfected an advertising device which consists of pieces of wood which can be applied to almost any use, and upon which pictures have been drawn. Among the uses to which the broad boards can be put is in the construction of the backs of chairs.

TOWERED OVER SHIP'S MASTS

Commanders of Vessels Supply New Information as to Height of Atlantic Waves.

It is very doubtful if the log of any naval vessel of the world contains records equal to those of the Roa. Lieut. Commander C. H. Woodward has stated that he never expected to bring his craft through the immense waves. The indicator on the bridge, which was at times the only part of the vessel out of water, showed that the little craft rolled 90 degrees, being at times clear over on her beam ends.

Just at the time when the commanders of the little squadron estimated that the gale was at its height and blowing practically 90 miles an hour the Roa's steering gear gave way and she dropped into the trough of the sea. This little vessel's masts are 52 feet high from the water line, says the Christian Herald, and although it has been stated that the highest wave yet recorded upon the Atlantic ocean was not more than 30 feet in height, Commander Woodward's estimate that the waves of the recent storm overtopped his masts by several feet has been borne out by the officers not only of the smaller ships but even of the battleship Delaware.

Sacredness of the Cow in India.

The killing of animals is abhorrent to the Hindoo. You may see the pious Jain, who carries the doctrine of the preservation of life to an absurd extreme, moving about on the Esplanade or near trees and fields with a packet of flour and sugar, in search of ants and other insects, that he may feed them from his store. In towns and villages you will occasionally come across the sacred bull, who roams about at will, and helps himself to grain and other foodstuffs placed in shops as he pleases. He is a symbol of divinity. None will molest him; everybody will hold him in reverence. But in the case of the bull the reverence is limited to the one who, so to speak, is born in purple.

As for the cow, the entire species is sacred, and to kill it is a cardinal sin. Whenever the pious Hindoo passes by a cow, he touches it with his hand and salutes it.

The Cure.

Miss Fay Templeton, at a supper at the Ritz-Carlton in New York given in honor of her return to the stage, praised the American business man.

"I have only one fault to find with him," she said. "He works too hard. Hence, of an evening, he is sometimes a little dull."

"But intelligent wives can soon cure their husbands of overworking. I know a wife--she and her good man are in Egypt now--who came down to dinner one night in a somber black robe."

"Her husband--a frightfully over-worked millionaire--looked at her costume and exclaimed:

"Why on earth, my love, are you wearing a dress like that? It's positively half-mourning."

"Of course it's half mourning," she replied. "When you come home from the office, don't you always complain that you're half dead?"

Perils of Sea Service.

The submarine branch of the navy has undoubtedly risks and dangers of its own, as the sad tale of previous disasters plainly shows; and when a catastrophe such as took place recently unhappily occurs it is of a nature to make a profound impression upon the public. But in relation to the number of submarines in commission, and to the constant exercise they undergo, the picked officers and men who serve in them do not incur a risk out of all proportion greater than their comrades in other branches. Danger and risk are no peculiar prerogative of the submarine, they form the very foundation of naval character, and are a pledge, in no small degree, of the security upon which as a nation we repose.--London Times.

PRES. OF BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF GETTYSBURG COLLEGE DIES

Native Driving Hospital Ambulance in Altoona Receives Injuries Causing Death.

EDMUND D. GRAFF, president of the Board of Trustees of Gettysburg College, and well known here, died on Monday evening of last week, in a hospital at Pittsburgh after an illness of several weeks following an operation. He leaves his wife, and three brothers, Frank Graff and Peter Graff, of Worthington and Philip Graff, of Duluth. Funeral in Worthington, his late home, on last Thursday afternoon.

HERBERT E. FONT died in the Altoona hospital Sunday, June 2, from injuries received in an accident in that city Saturday, May 25. The young man who had been the driver of the hospital ambulance for some time, collided with a trolley car while answering a hurried call, and he was hurled to the pavement, striking his head on the curb, sustaining a fracture of the skull. He was taken to the hospital, where he was given every attention, but his injuries proved fatal. He was aged 33 years, 7 months and 7 days. He is survived by three sisters. The remains were brought to Biglerville and interment was made at Flohr's church, Tuesday morning of last week.

MRS. MARGARET F. FIROR, widow of the late Samuel Firor, died at her home, in Hanover, Sunday morning, June 2d, aged 60 years, 11 months and 26 days. Mrs. Firor, whose maiden name was Riley, was born near Middleburg, Md., and was twice married. Her first husband was Henry Harbold, and in 1871 she was married to Samuel Firor, who died about five years ago. The family moved to Hanover from Fairfield in 1905. The deceased is survived by a brother, William J. Riley, of Philadelphia, and two sisters, Mrs. George Kraft, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Edgar Criswell, of York Springs. Four children also survive. Mrs. James Corwell, of Pennville, and Harry, Roy, and Mary Firor, at home. Funeral was held last Wednesday. The remains being taken to Fairfield, where services were held in the Lutheran church, and interment made in Union cemetery. Rev. Wm. Fleck, of Fairfield officiating.

MRS. MARGARET STAUB died at the home of her mother, Mrs. Catherine Staub, at Berlin Junction, on Tuesday of last week, aged 42 years, 9 months and 27 days. The deceased with her mother, removed from New Oxford to Berlin Junction, about April 1st. She had been in failing health for several years, and for a time was under treatment at a Baltimore hospital. Besides her mother, she is survived by four brothers—Wm. E. Staub, Hanover; James A. and Leo J., Berlin Junction; John F., at home; and two sisters—Mrs. John S. Weaver and Mrs. Harry Starner, of New Oxford. The funeral took place last Thursday, in the Catholic cemetery after a High Mass of Requiem in the Church of the Immaculate Conception. Rev. F. Shields officiating.

MRS. AMANDA WINAND, wife of Frederick Winand, died at her home close to York Springs, in Latimore township, on Wednesday, May 29, aged 82 years and 25 days. She was married in 1831 to Frederick Winand, who is in his 82nd year. She is survived by her husband and the following children: Walter Winand, Latimore township; E. C. Winand, New Chester; J. W. Winand, New Oxford; Mrs. Alveta Tanager, Huntingdon township; Mrs. Lillian Gartner, York; Mrs. Kate Kaufman, near East Berlin; and Mrs. Ollie Jacobs at home. Three brothers also survive. Dr. Thomas Kennedy, Bermudian; Isaac Kennedy and Martin Kennedy, Huntingdon township; also 26 grandchildren and 19 great-grandchildren. The funeral was held on Sunday, June 2, Rev. Charles Brown conducting services, interment at Latimore meeting house.

MRS. HANNAH ELIZA YEAGY, of Huntingdon township, died June 1st, 1912, from the effects of a stroke of paralysis, in her 77th year. The funeral services occurred on Tuesday morning of last week, from the residence of her brother, John A. Yeagy, with whom she had been living for many years. Interment was made in Sunnyside cemetery, York Springs. One sister, Mrs. Kate R. Albert, of Aspers, and two brothers, John A. Yeagy, of Mechanicsburg, survive.

MRS. ALICE NOEL, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Noel, died at her home in Bonneauville, Monday, June 3, aged about 28 years. The young lady had been in bad health for some years but the immediate cause of her death was pneumonia. She is survived by her parents, four brothers and four sisters. Curvin, of Gettysburg; Charles, of Midway; Mrs. John Bennett, of Hanover; Edna, Orlean; Margaret, Leo, and Arthur at home. HEZEKIAH HESSON, of Germany township, died at the York hospital last week, after being a medical patient in the institution since May 8th, last. He was aged sixty years. Mr. Hesson is survived by a number of children. The body was sent to Littlestown for burial.

Mrs. POLLY DAVIS died in Grangeville, York county, at the age of 85 years, 10 months and 27 days. She was the widow of Henry Davis, who died in McSherrystown about 14 years ago. The members of her immediate family have all passed away, the only relatives living being a number of nephews and nieces residing in the lower end of Adams county and in York county. Funeral Friday, June 7, services by Rev. A. M. Heilman, of St. Matthew's Lutheran church. Interment in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

Mrs. ALICE GUNT died on June 1, at home of a daughter at Knobsville, Fulton county, Pa., aged 60 years, 4 months and 13 days. Funeral and interment was at Knobsville. She is survived by her husband, four sons and two daughters, all living in Fulton county, except one son, Charles Gunt, residing in Biglerville.

DAVID T. BROWNELL, a veteran of the Civil War died early last Saturday morning at residence of Mrs. Amelia Flemming, on South Washington street, aged about 75 years. His home had been at Wattsburg, in Northwestern Pennsylvania. He came to Gettysburg last fall to spend the winter and has been boarding with Mrs. Flemming. He had been working at City Hotel stable and became ill on memorial Day. He became better being able to walk about last Thursday and early Saturday morning when asked whether he wanted anything it was discovered that he had expired. He was a bachelor. His body was taken to the Post Room and in accordance with his wishes was interred in the National cemetery. He leaves a sister living in Morgantown, West Va., who was notified of his death. He was a member of the G. A. R. and a pensioner.

Crex Rugs, Carpets and Runners at lowest possible prices always on hand. We have a splendid assortment of Carpet in all the wanted qualities, with borders to match, at very attractive prices. Bring your room measure and let us quote prices for any size rug required.

Matting

We still have about 50 rolls of the finest China and Japan Matting we have ever handled. We will close this lot out at the following prices:

30c quality, 25 cts., 25c quality, 20 cts.
Don't buy inferior matting when you can get such fine goods at these prices.

Linoleum and Oil Cloth

We still have a full line of Linoleum and Oil Cloth at the old price. These goods too, will be much higher soon, owing to the scarcity of burlap.

Vudor Porch Screens

Make your porch cool and secluded with a Vudor Porch Screen.
10 ft. wide screens at $5.50 8 ft. wide screens at $4.25
6 ft. wide screens at $3.25

Telephone for Prices Before You Pick

With Rural Bell Telephone Service at your command, all the markets and commission merchants are always within easy reach; you pick and ship your fruit or produce when you learn by telephone—that the market is "RIGHT."

No more wearisome trips to town to find the markets overloaded. The telephone saves all that, and is just as important as the reaper or the plough on every farm.

Write to-day for our new booklet, "What Uncle Sam Says about the Rural Telephone. It is free."

TO CONSUMPTIVES

Rev. Edward A. Wilson having been restored to health by simple means, after suffering for several years with a severe affection and that dread disease CONSUMPTION, I am anxious in his behalf to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of his cure. To any one who desires I will send (free of charge) a full description of his cure. You will find it a wonderful remedy for CONSUMPTION, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, CATARRH, GRIP, COUGHS, COLDS and all lung and throat maladies. I hope all sufferers will try Mr. Wilson's remedy—it is invaluable. Those desiring the description, which will cost them nothing, and I may prove a blessing, will please address: Charles A. Abbott, 60 Ann Street, New York City.

Cheap Music.

The undersigned will sell $50 Weaver Organs Walnut finished at $25.00. Edison $50 Phonographs improved to play 4 and 2 minute records at $25. 200 new 4 and 2 minute records, 4 minute $4.50 per dozen, 2 minute $3.50 per dozen. We have now new Men's, Women's and childrens Footwear which we are selling on the same principle as the line of musical goods. We sold the past week a number of Men's shoes to Farmers at $2.50 and $2.00 which they declare they paid in Gettysburg $3.50 for the same identical shoe. That is the reason that no person with brains ever offered us less than we ask.

W. A. BURGOON,

Supervising Principal

Miss Rummel's school has the splendid record of having no cases of tardiness during entire term. Total enrollment of last year was 677, this year showing an increase of 21. Per cent of attendance likewise has increased from 95 to 96. Last year 112 were perfect in attendance, this year 141, an increase of 29. While the total number of tardy marks is much higher than it ought to be it shows the gratifying decrease of 158, the number then being 895.

Following is the lists of pupils perfect in attendance with the number of years for those perfect more than one successive term:

Years of Suffering

Catarrh and Blood Disease—Doctors Failed to Cure.

Miss Mabel F. Perkins, 1214 Lafayette St., Fort Wayne, Ind., writes: "For three years I was troubled with catarrh and blood disease. I tried several doctors and a dozen different remedies, but none of them did me any good. A friend told me of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I took two bottles of this medicine and was as well and strong as ever. I feel like a different person and recommend Hood's to any one suffering from catarrh."

ITCHING IRRITATION.

Worst Form of Skin Trouble—Quickly Cured by Inexpensive Treatment

When you suffer with any skin trouble, even though the itching seems unbearable, do not think that it is necessary to use some disgusting greasy ointment. Try Hekara, a pure and simple skin food that is guaranteed to contain no grease or acids and which is so cleanly it does not soil the linen.

Its power to instantly relieve any irritation of the skin and make it soft, white and beautiful is almost miraculous.

Not only are minor skin troubles like pimples, blackheads, acne, barber's itch, etc., quickly cured but the worst ulcers or cases of salt rheum or eczema are cleansed and healed by this wonderful skin food.

In order that any one may try Hekara at small expense, L. M. Buehler is selling a liberal sized jar at 25c and in addition guarantees to refund the money if the treatment does not do all that is claimed for it. Larger size 50 cents.

Use Allen's Foot-Ease

MARRIAGES.

May 26, at the Lutheran parsonage, Dover, by the Rev. A. G. Fastnacht, Emory K. Eisenhart, of near East Berlin, and Vera A. Ulrich, of Wells ville, were united in marriage.

MARKLEY—MEALS—An early June wedding was solemnized last Wednesday at noon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Meals, of Carlisle formerly of Centre Mills this county when their daughter, Miss Ethel Roxanna Meals, became the wife of Robert Redding Markley, of Richmond, Va. The ceremony was performed under an arch of spring flowers, in the parlor, by the Rev. J. P. Koontz of Carlisle, pastor of the Grace United Brethren church. There were no attendants. Miss Myrtle K. Rupp, of Carlisle, sang "O, Perfect Love", and played the "Strains from Lohengrin" before the ceremony; after the ceremony she played Mendelssohn's "Wedding March". The bride wore white crepe trimmed with lace. The color scheme was pink, green and white. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Markley, of Lemoyne. He is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, 1911, and is employed in the office of Noland and Backen-ville, architects, Richmond, Va. The bride is the accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Meals, who moved to Carlisle recently from Centre Mills, Adams Co. The bride and groom left this afternoon on a wedding trip to Philadelphia, Atlantic City, New York and Boston. They will reside at Richmond, Va. ***

POHLMAN — FLEISHMAN — Joseph Pohlman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pohlman, of Mt. Pleasant township, and Miss Amy Fleishman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tobias Fleishman, of Midway, were married at a nuptial mass at Conewago Chapel Tuesday, June 4, at 7 a. m., by Rev. J. A. McDonald. They were attended by Miss Gertrude Gephart, of White Hall, as bridesmaid, and Michael Pohlman, a brother of the groom. The bride wore a gown of white silk messaline, with veil, and carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid was dressed in pink silk and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. A wedding breakfast was served at the bride's home and a wedding dinner at the groom's home. Mr. and Mrs. Pohlman went on a trip to Baltimore, Washington and other places.

Grandma's Colic

By John Philip Orth

(Copyright, 1912, by Associated Literary Press.)

Grandma Burbanks had a little grandson, six years old, and that little grandson and 5 cents' worth of raw peanuts brought about a case of the colic, a thunder-storm, a misunderstanding, a case of love and a very happy marriage. When all was over the old lady thought she had done very well for a woman of her age.

It was the grandson that bought the raw peanuts and brought them home to divide them with grandma. She couldn't have eaten a peck, for there were not that many to begin on, but at eight o'clock in the evening, as she was tucked away in her bed, the pains began. Mr. and Mrs. Burbanks were away for the night; Harry, the son, twenty-three years old, was in town and not expected out until the midnight train; the grandson was asleep, and the house was in charge of Miss Dorothy, aged nineteen.

There are various remedies for colic. There are hot drinks, mustard plasters and whisky with pepper in it, and it may be cured in ten minutes or everything may be found useless. After Miss Dorothy had worked away for half an hour she decided that the doctor must be sent for.

"Is that Dr. Holmes?" she asked when she telephoned in to the village, three miles away.

"The doctor is out and not expected back until after midnight," was the reply.

Dr. Winchell was tried. He was also out. The druggist thought he could put up something for that colic, but he had no boy to send. Grandma groaned out with every breath that that breath was the last she expected to draw in this world. The girl must harness the pony and drive to the village for the remedy. Grandma might die during her absence, but she promised to live if she possibly could. As she was deaf, the house would have to be locked up.

Miss Dorothy was so rattled that she didn't notice the thunderstorm coming up until she had driven a mile or more. Then a flash and a reverberation and a few drops showed her that she was in for a time. Five minutes later and the pony refused to face the storm. When held up to it he wheeled and started for home on a gallop, and did not pause until he had brought up under a shed. The girl ran for the house to discover that she was locked out. A spring-lock and her mislaid key had done it. She tried window after window in vain. It was no use to call to a deaf woman in her bed upstairs, or hope to awaken the boy whose peanuts had brought the trouble about. The girl was cowering on the veranda, dodging the flashes and scolding herself and all others, when the lightning showed her the figure of a man with a bag in his hand coming up the walk. He looked long and lank, and he dripped gallons of water.

The stranger was after shelter. He did not ring the bell, but got what shelter the veranda afforded and did not even look around him. Miss Dorothy was ten feet away, and believed the stranger a tramp until he muttered:

"Well, of all the blank fools in this state you take the cake!"

He had the voice of a gentleman, and he swore like a gentleman. A real gentleman's swearing is not swearing. It is only for emphasis. Instead of being shocked, Miss Dorothy waited to hear:

"No hurry to start out tonight, and yet you were blank fool enough to think it would be a romantic walk! Well, you've got the romance of it! Soaked from head to heel and more coming!"

Miss Dorothy liked the voice. She liked to realize that she wasn't the only fool to start out in the face of the storm. She liked it when the stranger gave himself a shake like a collic dog after a swim, and mumbled:

"Call yourself a doctor and yet run the risks of such an exposure! Sore throat, cold in the head and backache to pay for this. Say, Doc, it would serve you blank right if some of the people inside fired a charge of bird-shot at you and drove you off, Lands, but how it does pour!"

Miss Dorothy had heard the man call himself a doctor, and her thoughts leaped to poor old grandma. She knew the doctors she had telephoned for, and this was neither of them. The case demanded a little boldness on her part, however, and she advanced a step or two and asked:

"Did I understand you to say you were a doctor?"

After a jump aside and an exclamation of "Good Lord!" the man replied:

"I can't make out who you are, but I am a doctor, driven to shelter by the storm. If I trespass I am ready to go."

"No, no. I had started to the village after medicine for my grandmother when the storm drove me back. She is suffering with the colic, and I should call this an act of Providence if we could only get into the house."

"Locked out, eh? I am a new doctor just about to set up practice in the village, and I have a bag of remedies with me. Let's see what sort of a burglar I am. Perhaps one of my keys will open the door."

One of them did, and as soon as he could throw off some of his outer garments he was at the bedside of his patient. Grandma was having a hard time of it. Indeed, it was hours before she was easier, and the two worked over her now and then, and now and then had opportunity to talk. A doctor with his first patient, and a girl with a grandmother suffering from too many raw peanuts, don't have to stand on ice-cold formality.

When Harry reached the house from the midnight train he almost made up his mind that they were quite chummy. He didn't do any criticizing, however. He loved his grandmother, was happy her life had been saved, and he wasn't the kind of brother to offer his advice simply because he had a sister. The only thing he did say was after breakfast, and that was partly to himself:

"The ways of Providence are past finding out. Those peanuts and that thunderstorm may bring me a brother-in-law."

"You need some one to get you home earlier," was the reply; and matters rested there.

Grandma heard all about the storm and the providential appearance of Dr. Burnett, and when he called the next afternoon to see if she had fully recovered she was very grateful. Mr. and Mrs. Burbanks were in the room with the patient and doctor, but that did not prevent the old lady from saying to her son:

"James, I thought surely my time had come, and there was only one thing that I worried about. You know what I have often said to you?"

"I don't recall it at this minute," was the reply.

"Why, that we ought to have a doctor in the family. We can't get one through Harry, but we can through Dorothy. I wish you would have a talk with her today."

Just what the son and his wife thought, and just how the blushing girl got out of the room without falling over the rugs is not recorded, but this much the historian knows—the doctor bent forward at just the right instant to feel grandma's pulse and to warn her that at her age a person shouldn't swallow too many wooden toothpicks nor eat too many raw turnips just before going to bed. He didn't look over-rod nor over-pale when he left the house, half an hour later.

Dr. Burnett became popular in the village. In driving out that way he always had time to make a call at the Burbanks' mansion, and after a bit it rather looked as if Miss Dorothy expected him about once in so often, but it was months and months before grandmother's mind was put at rest. After saying that she expected the next attack of colic to carry her off she said:

"That is, unless we have a doctor in the family."

"He—he asked me today if the family would take him in!" was the whispered reply from behind her chair.

"And you said the family would—and we will—and oh, dear me, I almost wish I had the colic again and was hearing the angels strumming on their harps!"

Why We Rap on Wood.

In Farm and Preside is the following explanation of the origin of the superstition that rapping on wood is a good thing to do when one makes a boast:

"The superstition of rapping on wood when one has been betrayed into boasting of a special bit of luck, like immunity from illness, etc., is of German origin. The raps were supposed to drive away evil spirits vexed by vaunted happiness or any piece of good fortune."

"The three raps originally signified the three persons of the Trinity. Father, Son and Holy Ghost, and the necessity for rapping on wood was because that has the material of the cross."

Echoes From the Woods.

"Woodman," said the man who quotes poetry but lamely, "withhold the ax with which you are about to lay low this sturdy oak, thereby preserving a valuable asset to posterity and sparing yourself greater fatigue than the object striven for justifies."

"I see," replied the woodman: "you are a man of scientific ideas and seek to employ the energy of conservation to the conservation of energy."

SAVED HIS RASCALLY SON

How Mansard Came to Construct the Great Hall at Arles Without Central Pillar.

The great hall of the Hotel de Ville of Arles, France, designed by Mansard, is the wonder and admiration of every one who has seen it on account of the groined roof.

In regard to this a neighboring cafeter tells a somewhat grim story. King Louis XIV. happened to be passing through the city just at the time Mansard was superintending the completion of his creation. The roof was supported by a powerful pillar. The monarch admired the work and congratulated the architect on his design. At that moment the architect was passing through great domestic tribulation. He had a son under sentence of death, so he thought it would be a good opportunity to intercede on behalf of the lad.

Mansard threw himself at the feet of the king and said: "Your majesty sees in the center that massive column? If you will spare the life of my son I will remove the unsightly pillar and the roof shall stand without support." "Mansard," replied the king, "if you accomplish that miracle I will pardon your son, but if you fail I will hang you with him."

The architect removed the pillar without great difficulty and with the result desired. The cafeter is a philosopher and he concludes his story with the reflection that had not Mansard's son been a scamp the hall at Arles would be just like any other hall.

SMALL COURTESIES ARE LOST

These Things That Make Life Really Worth While Seem to Be Forgotten.

Small courtesies of life seem to be entirely lost in the rush for big things. This leaving off of the little things that go to make living worth the while is a well-known and recognized fact to women who crave those gracious attentions so easy in the giving when the thought is right.

Many men no longer consider it necessary to rise when a lady enters the room. If they proffer a chair, it is seldom done with the old-time alacrity, and a few trips on a city car will be sufficient to convince the veriest skeptic of the truth of courtesy's decadence.

Be it said in favor of man, continually on the rack regarding these omissions, that he is by no means the greatest offender. Women who entertain will tell you of scores of invitations to which they have never even received the courtesy of an acknowledgment. "R. S. V. P." at the end of a card or note means nothing to women too thoughtless or too ill-bred to take five minutes for a reply. Such treatment of a social courtesy is an offense garish enough to cause the offender's name to be struck from the social list of the hostess.

The small courtesies of woman to woman are fully as important as those from man to woman, or woman to man.

Propagating Carp.

Isador Loewy, formerly a rabbi but in late years employed as a police court interpreter, hurried into night court in a state of perplexity.

"Does anybody here know how to feed a carp?" he asked a court attendant.

"What's a carp?" asked the attendant.

"It's a fish," answered Loewy, "and it's fine. Three pounds it weighs. My wife she bought three carp at the market and brought them home. One was alive and I put it in the bath tub. The other two I ate."

"I don't want that fish to die. In eight days I will eat him, but not before, and I want him to live and grow fat."

"Where are you going to keep it all this time?" was asked.

"In the bath tub, sure. Where else?" Loewy answered.—New York World.

Coroner's Inquest Over Coins.

A short time ago 150 gold coins, dating from the period of the Roman occupation of Britain, were found in a bronze jar about one foot below the surface of the ground three miles from Hexham, England, on the site of the ancient Roman city of Corstopitum.

A coroner's inquest has been held to determine their ownership. The jury, however, was unable to agree as to whether the coins were treasure trove or not, the contention of the owner of the land being that the coins had been left on an ancient highway and abandoned during a raid by the Caledonians against the Romans. The coroner therefore agreed to keep the coins for a week to see if some arrangement could be made with the treasury as to their disposal.

Many "Holy Lands."

Christians use the term Holy Land to designate Palestine, as being the scene of the birth, ministry and death of Christ, but, interestingly enough, other religious sects employ the same term for places sacred to them from association. Thus the Mohammedans speak of Mecca as the Holy Land, it being the birthplace of Mohammed. The Chinese Buddhists call India the Holy Land, because the founder of their religion was born there, while the Greeks bestow this same title on Ellis, where was situated the temple of Olympian Zeus.

CHILDHOOD A VARIED PERIOD

From Twenty Years, in the Human Race, It Grades Down to a Few Weeks Among the Birds.

The childhood of animals varies with the total length of life, with the size, and especially with the position, in the life scale. Long lived animals, large animals and highly developed animals usually have a long youth. The educated human being requires 20 years to grow up; the savage about 15; the higher monkeys—the gorilla and the orang—12 to 14 years; the baboon, 8 years, and the small monkeys, about half that time. The less intelligent cat race has a youth of but 4 or 5 years among the larger kinds. The vegetable-eating animals, mostly of small intelligence, grow up quickly, the buffalo and all the big antelopes and deer having only about 2 years of childhood, and the chamois somewhat longer, although the giraffe has 5 or 6 years. The elephant, the largest of land animals and one of the most intelligent, is not grown up until 20 to 27 years old. All birds have a short youth, looking after themselves in 3 weeks to 3 months, but becoming grown up in 1 to 4 years. Many reptiles—like the tortoise, crocodile, and alligator—seem to grow all their lives. Certain other creatures have a short adult period—the mayfly, for instance, spending 2 years on the bottom of a pond, and living but a few hours after emerging fully grown from its skin covering. Still more extreme is the American cicada, which gropes 17 years underground, and lives but 2 or 3 weeks after emerging.

STILL HAD A POINT TO MAKE

Domestic Difficulties Being Settled, Woman Insisted Upon One Other Understanding.

A colored couple was taken before the juvenile court and against the man was placed the charge of neglecting his children. Judge Taylor gave advice as to what should be done to straighten out the family trouble so the couple could continue to live together and support the children.

"You are earning $8 a week, and have three children to support on that," said the judge. "It is evident that you must cut your expenses down as low as possible. You are paying for a piano by installments. You will have to stop that, for people in your circumstances can't afford to have a piano."

"You must leave the house you are living in and move to a smaller one with lower rent. You ought not to pay over $5 or $6 a month for rent." The mother objected to this, saying that she could not live in a respectable neighborhood under such conditions.

The judge found that they belonged to different churches, and he advised that the wife join the husband's church. He added that it was proper that the husband hold the purse strings. After many other difficulties had been smoothed over the case was continued two weeks to give the new methods a trial. The couple left, but at the door the woman turned to the judge and said:

"Dat will be all right, but Ah must insist dat be pinch his mouf an' stop talking about me."—Indianapolis News.

Daytime Somnambulists.

"The latest product of our complex civilization is the daytime sleep-walker," said a hotel clerk. "The New York habit of turning night into day and vice versa is responsible for him. He is particularly likely to haunt hotels and lodging houses. Night hawks with somnambulist tendencies are frequently numbered among our guests, and maids and porters now add to their regular duties a vigilant patrol of halls and corridors which the daytime sleep-walker would be most likely to choose for a promenade. No body seems to know just what to do with a person whose daylight slumbers send him strolling about the hotel in a state of subconscious activity."

"There are prescribed rules for the treatment of a nocturnal somnambulist. Speak to him softly, touch him gently, lead him back to his room. Just so. In the case of a midnight sleepwalker that usually works, but just try it on a man parading around in broad daylight and see what happens. Daytime somnambulists seem unusually high-strung, and no matter how gentle the attack, most of them have to be escorted back to their rooms in a hysterical condition."

Misapprehending a Title.

He was barefooted, his trousers were fringed at the bottom, his face was dirty, his years eleven. He approached the librarian with a confident air:

"Got Shakespeare?"

"Yes. What volume would you like?"

At this he looked puzzled, and the librarian took him to an alcove where she showed him row upon row of Shakespeares. As he still looked puzzled at the number of volumes, the librarian took one down, "The Merchant of Venice," and gave it to him. He looked it over critically.

READY TO FOLLOW LEADER

Unless It Is Fear, There Is No Contagion So Quickly Spread as That of Emotion.

George F. Bass used to tell a story that illustrated the contagion of emotions.

An old darkey sat by his fireside in a dejected frame of mind ruminating on the miseries of the human race. Towser, his faithful hound, lay on the hearth with his jowl on his paws, absorbing the heat in blissful somnolence. Presently the master groaned sepulchraly. Towser courteously opened one eye for a second and tapped on the floor with his tail. A silence. Then said the master: "Houn, man am bo'n to trouble as de spak's fly upwad."

Towser shook off slumber for a moment, lifted his head and evinced his sympathy by a steadfast look, then settled down to dreams again. Another silence. Then the master inspired to fuller expression of his woes by the response of his auditor, continued:

"Houn, dis y' 'arth am a place o' trouble an' a vale o' tears; de debbil he roams, up an' down like a hongry lion seekin' who he may devour; de ways of de weeked am shorely full o' tribulation."

This time Towser's nose was lifted toward the ceiling and a long, lugubrious woo-o-wo-woo-woo! expressed his acquiescence to his master's sentiments.

"Yes," was Mr. Bass's conclusion, "emotions are contagious; all that is needed is a proper leader."

PRACTICAL GIFT FOR BEGGAR

Stranger May Have Meant Well, but His Kindness Was Not in the Least Appreciated.

After suffering excruciating tortures for six months from doubling up a perfectly sound leg to fit on a wooden stump the crutch-bearing beggar finally succeeded in eliciting sympathy from a passerby. With kindly eyes the stranger eyed the cripple from top to toe.

"You seem to be in a pretty bad way," he said.

"Yes, sir," whined the cripple.

"Couldn't be much worse."

"Too bad," said the sympathizer.

"I must see if something can't be done for you."

Hope beat strongly in the beggar's breast and he murmured "God bless you," with unusual fervor.

Two days later the sympathizer appeared again and ostentatiously presented the cripple with the materialization of his benevolent intentions. He gave him a new crutch.

Sterilized Coal.

Coal in the mines is one of the things freest from germs. Old-time doctors used to notice coal miners' wounds healed fast, though begrimed and besmeared with coal dust. For a long time it has been thought that breathing in coal dust caused lung diseases in miners. Some experts find fresh coal is as good as sterilized, and say miners have lung trouble because they do not take the trouble to put off their damp and sweaty clothing before going from the mine to their homes, thus taking cold in the open air walk. Experts say our miners ought to put on warm and dry clothes at the mouth of the mine. But it seems the miners have minds of their own, and although the coal companies in some places fixed up hot and cold water baths and dressing rooms at the mouth of the mines the men would not use them, but went home to wash and dress, as had been their custom for generations.

Amazon River.

It has been stated in official consular reports that the aggregate navigable waters of the Amazon and tributaries for all sorts of craft is estimated to exceed 45,000 miles. The average depth is from 40 to 150 feet and the average width from 6 to 40 miles.

At the mouth near Para the river is 138 miles wide, including the island of Marajo and the northern and southern outlets. The immense volume of water discharged marks a path of yellow water in the blue of the Atlantic easily distinguishable for 150 miles at sea, creating a fresh water sea while out of sight of land. This yellow or old gold colored water uniting with the equatorial current trends to the north at the rate of six miles an hour, and entering the Caribbean sea forms what is recognized as the Gulf stream.

Electric Bitters

Succeed when everything else fails. In nervous prostration and female weaknesses they are the supreme remedy, as thousands have testified. FOR KIDNEY, LIVER AND STOMACH TROUBLE it is the best medicine ever sold over a druggist's counter.

SAVED BY A POSTAL

Thousands Have Been Cured by Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy—Lives Saved by a Postal Card.

They wrote for a free trial bottle, and were so much pleased with the general results obtained, that they bought a large size bottle of their druggist and it benefited or cured them. It has cured thousands—it will cure you.

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is of the greatest value for diseases of the Kidneys, Liver and Blood; rheumatism, constipation and illnesses peculiar to women. Stops such dangerous symptoms as pain in the back, headache back of eyes, inability to hold urine, burning pains and frequent urination. Wonderfully successful for nearly forty years. Write to-day to Dr. David Kennedy Co., Rondout, N. Y., for a free sample bottle and medical pamphlet. Large bottles sold by 40,000 druggists.
